Abudawood Highlights: Educational Awareness Session with Virtual University

In order to increase the educational awareness in our staff, the non-management recruitment team conducted sessions in Karachi branches (Korangi & FB Area) in collaboration with Virtual University. These were interactive sessions where the importance of education was discussed with respect to religion as well as for personal growth and development. The presentation was concluded by rolling out the 50% scholarship program for all ADP employees and their blood relatives. This announcement was welcomed by all the staff.

The floor was opened to Virtual University representatives who gave information regarding their learning systems and different programs being offered. During the question and answer session there was interactive discussion on the fee structure, payment methods and different ways in which VU could facilitate our employees to enhance their educational qualifications. It was welcoming to see the employees take a keen interest in the program offerings. The sessions were a success and were appreciated from the non-management staff at both the branches.

We are excited to see the benefits this will reap for our employees and for Abudawood as a whole since more sessions are due to be held at other locations as well.

Moving people, moving business

Maqsood Alam Khan...
...Had to say this about himself

Setting goals

- I visit customers regularly to understand their motivations
- If a customer tries to stall making a bill, I persist until he is convinced and I only give up once I have made the sale

Business as usual

- I am able to offer solutions that meet my customers requirements because I think like them
- My territory is time consuming and requires patience. I have been transferred to more challenging channels, by achieving my KPIs where colleagues have quit

Motivation

- My FLM is very supportive and appreciative of my work which makes it more rewarding to perform
- I believe that working with strong ethics and integrity will result in rewards

For those of you who don't know Maqsood Alam Khan...

Hometown: North Nazimabad, Buffer Zone
Present location: Karachi, Korangi
Manager: Qamar Bilal Syed
Been with Abudawood since: 3 years
Favorite personality: Shah Rukh Khan because he struggled early in his career but never gave up
Favorite food: Chicken Chargha
Favorite Sports: Wrestling
Advice: If everyone works with integrity results will follow and society will improve

Ali Rehan

Founder/CEO of Eyedeus Lab

“There are people in the world who take freedom positively by utilizing it and there are others who fool around and waste their time. I am pleased to be the former

Ali Rehan is the CEO of Eyedeus Labs, a tech startup that comprises a small team working on innovative technologies for image and video. Ali received a degree in Bsc and MS from the LUMS School of Engineering. He is a computer scientist/researcher with a strong passion for computer vision technologies. Their first product, Groopic, received rave reviews from top technology blogs, websites, news channels and most importantly, users. The company was selected by Google for Entrepreneurs Sponsored, a two week program in Silicon Valley and is currently accelerated by Blackbox, a valley based accelerator program. Eyedeus Labs has also received Best Startup Silver Awards at P@SHA ICT Awards 2013 and APICTA Awards 2013.

What is Groopic?

Groopic is the maiden product by Eyedeus Labs. This revolutionary application solves the age-old problem of having the photographer left out of any group shot. All you have to do is take two pictures – each with a different photographer – and Groopic magically merges the two photos to produce a single picture of the whole group. Eyedeus Labs released this application for iOS on 10th July 2013 and today it is available to iOS and Android users. The idea for Groopic was born not as a result of personal experience but evolved as an idea for a startup competition by LUMS who has been pivotal in providing technical and financial support to Eyedeus Labs.
